

Encroachment Issue at Perris Valley Airport (L-65)

Perris Valley airport is a family-owned public use airport. Their skydiving business, "Skydive Perris" is extremely successful. It supports not only recreational skydiving activities, but the business has parachute training contracts with the Department of Defense and various foreign governments. The skydiving business has been in operation for 50 years.

The airport is currently under threat from a proposal to build 867,000 sq ft warehouse 2 story office too close to their runway. The primary concerns are that the proposed building and truck parking will create turbulent wind patterns in the runway touchdown zone and parachute landing areas. Please see the attached document with information and a graphic showing the airport and the proposed development. The family is looking for letters of support from local pilots that understand the threat. If you would like to help, you can either write a letter of support for the airport and/or business to the Riverside County Airport Land Use Commission (ALUC), or you can make public comment at the Riverside County ALUC meeting in downtown Riverside on April 10th.

- Letters can be sent to Mr. Paul Rull , ALUC Director.
